Hi, Visionaries!

Like everyone, we're learning to adapt to the new normal and define what it means for Trojan Vision. One of our aims is to bridge the gaps created during this socially distanced semester and reunite the Trojan Vision family. We hope this bi-monthly newsletter, among other initiatives, will help us and you connect with our students, volunteers, alumni, and faculty.

Big changes are ahead and we look forward to sharing them with you at our virtual party on October 9th! Join us to learn about Trojan Vision's progress during the pandemic. Hear from those involved, network with current and past members, and enjoy a fun game of TTVV trivia!

What is Trojan Vision doing now?

They say the show must go on- and Trojan Vision is no exception! Following the industry standards of pandemic-production, our students are using StreamYard to produce virtual segments that will live stream on Facebook during Show Week, the second week in November. However, our changes are not only limited to production technique- we have also adapted the management structure, segment content, and volunteer involvement. Read the USC Provost's recent article about us to learn more.

We miss our studio but are taking this remote period to evaluate our practices and presence at USC. We are working hard to bring Trojan Vision up to it's full potential and hope to keep you updated on our progress through this newsletter!

Trojan Visionary Spotlight: Kiara Simmons

Kiara is a Sophomore studying communications at The Annenberg School. Her hometown is Atlanta, Georgia, but she's enjoying her third semester in LA right now! Kiara joined Trojan Vision over a year ago as a 409er on our show, Soundstage. She is now a Student Assistant for CTPR 409. Through Trojan Vision, Kiara has improved her directing skills. This is especially useful to her because she hopes to become a film director or a writer for games. Outside of Trojan Vision, Kiara likes to draw, make films, and cook! Right now her favorite movie is Parasite and her favorite show is Pose. She hopes everyone who has a passion for entertainment joins CTPR 409 since she found it was a great way to develop her interests, even without having much prior experience!
