Hey Visionaries!

We are just one month into the fall semester, with more and more activity unfolding in the Trojan Vision studio every week! 409 and 404 classes have moved back into the Trojan Vision facility and Studio C. Run-throughs and rehearsals are underway, which means that your favorite TVTV shows will be broadcasting soon!

Mary Liu, a 409 student assistant, is appreciating the surreal experience of being back in person, and feeling excited to see everyone working hard on their shows. "The 409 students are doing a great job adjusting to our first week back and getting themselves familiarized with all the new spaces and equipment," Liu said. "I'm so excited to see our Trojan Vision shows come together in the future weeks!"

As are we - Trojan Vision shows will be up and running very soon, according to this schedule:

MEET THE NEWEST MEMBERS OF OUR MANAGEMENT TEAM!

Trojan Vision's management team recently welcomed two new students: Phoebe Lai, our new Industry Relations Manager, and Maia Kirkpatrick, our new Assistant Producer! We caught up with our new team members to see what inspired them to continue their journey with Trojan Vision. Check out their profiles below!

PHOEBE LAI

Phoebe Lai - Manager of Industry Relations:

"I joined Trojan Vision my freshman year through CTPR 409. Even though it was conducted through Zoom, I absorbed so much about the process of production, learning everything from how to audition actors to how to direct a shot.

I knew I wanted to participate at Trojan Vision in another way when USC returned back to campus. As Manager of Industry Relations, I'm able to both connect Trojan Vision alumni with students, while also being involved with news at the station!"

Maia Kirkpatrick - Associate Producer:

"I joined Trojan Vision as a 409 student because I was really interested in getting some hands-on production experience during my first semester at USC.

Having come from 409, I joined the Trojan Vision Management Team as Associate Producer because I was interested in being involved in all facets of the station. I am also a senior producer on The Morning Brew and I love that I've gotten to know other people involved in Trojan Vision outside of just one show."

MAIA KIRKPATRICK
